The existing wetland character of the nearby Ingrebourne marshes will be extended through the planting across the roundabout at Dovers Corner bringing the spirit of Wanstead Marshes to the railway and defining the entrance to Rainham village as set within the bigger landscape.

A road sign reading DOVERS on one side and CORNER on the other creates a new landmark that refers to the local history of this location. Please note the technical details of this junction are in the process of being continued.

Here the footway peels away from the cycle track giving the planting more prominence and pedestrians and cyclists a chance to experience a sense of the bigger wetland landscapes nearby. Seating is set back from the footway amid the naturalistic planting.
